Questions

Directions: In a group of 3-4 students who share some interests, look over the Student Club Activities insert that came out of the student handbook. Answer the following questions and discuss with your class

1. What is the procedure for forming a new club?
2. According to your interests, name an athletic activity offered by the school that you'd be interested in joining. Also, record who to contact in order to express your interest and get more information.
3. According to your interests, name an arts-related activity offered by the school that you'd be interested in joining. Also, record who to contact in order to express your interest and get more information.
4. According to your interests, name an academic activity offered by the school that you'd be interested in joining. Also, record who to contact in order to express your interest and get more information.
5. According to your interests, name an organizational or student government-related activity offered by the school that you'd be interested in joining. Also, record who to contact in order to express your interest and get more information.
6. Talk over with your partners the questions of "What do we wish our school had that they don't?" Is there any kind of club/organization/activity that you think students would be interested in joining if it existed? List an example or two of activities you wish the school offered

Conclusion (Answer Individually)

1. After all the recent exploration of school involvement, its values, its options, etc., have you come to view your own level of involvement any differently? For instance: if you are involved, do you now see some value in these activities that you hadn't before? Or if you're not involved, do you see why it can be a good idea to become more involved? Explain your answer.

2. Is there anything in the school or outside of the school you've always wanted to know more about or try doing but never had the chance? If so, do your school activities offer you an opportunity to work with it? If not, do you think your school would be willing to expand its offering to better serve students with interests and passion like yours? Explain.
